Winslow moved to Colorado in 1992 from California. He graduated from the University of Northern Colorado in 2009 with a Bachelor of Arts in History. After taking some time to coach high school baseball, he attended the University of Denver College of Law, graduating in 2013. While in law school, he was a member of the University of Denver Water Law Review. After graduation, Winslow worked as in-house counsel for a title insurance company in Omaha, Nebraska. He joined Tucker Holmes in February, 2015.

Winslow's practice focuses on representing insurance companies in first-party bad faith cases, defending public entities facing claims under Colorado's Governmental Immunity

Act, insurance coverage issues, and defending insured parties in contract and tort matters, including general commercial liability, premises liability, and auto liability. He has successfully tried cases to juries in federal and state courts, and in arbitration. He has also represented clients in the appellate process and has argued in front of the Colorado Court of Appeals and the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.
